THE PESO REMAINS competitive vis-a-vis other currencies in the region despite being stronger, rallying by over 5 percent against the US dollar since the start of the year, the Bangko Sentral ng Pilipinas said.

The peso closed Friday at 53.27:$1 from Thursday's 53.25:$1 but currency traders said fundamentals still favored the local currency.

Now trading at nearly three-year highs, the local currency opened at a high of 53.18 but gave up some gains and closed near the day's low at 53.27:$1.

Trading volume at the Philippine Dealing System was thin at $106.54 million ahead of the long Christmas holiday break.

BSP Governor Amando Tetangco said a strong peso benefited the country more than it spawned negative effects.

"The exchange rate is only one of the factors that affect export competitiveness. There are other factors like wages, energy and infrastructure costs," Tetangco said.

"Compared to other currencies in the region like the Thai baht, while the differential against the peso has narrowed recently (as the peso slightly caught up), compared to the exchange rate a few years back, the differential has gone up," he said.

BSP Deputy Governor Diwa Guinigundo said the adverse impact of a strong peso on external competitiveness was softened by the extent of inflation.

"While the peso has been quite strong, the inflation rate has started to ease. When nominal exchange rate appreciates, you tend to lose competitiveness. But now that inflation has slowed down, that's the mitigating factor to the continuing strength of the peso," he said.

The BSP officials said the peso's strong ascent in recent days was partly due to seasonal factors, as the increase in inflows from overseas Filipino workers in December and strong portfolio investments.

Christmas Day in tsunami zone tinged with sadness general, a well-known observation is that the distribution of the number of children per family is skewed to the right (Figure 1). In contrast, a random variable that is normally distributed is symmetric. The fact that the distribution of the number of children per family is skewed to the right is a clear indication that the distribution is not normal.

As a result, the authors conclude that the use of a single, standard, and simple questionnaire is not sufficient to assess the impact of a training program. The authors suggest that a more comprehensive and detailed questionnaire should be used to assess the impact of a training program.

Christians pray for peace

Pilgrims pack Bethlehem again

NETHERLANDS, WEST BANK—A THOUSAND CHRISTIANS FROM NETHERLANDS and other countries gathered in the town of Bethlehem on Thursday to pray for peace in the Holy Land.

The group, known as the "Bethlehem Pilgrims," arrived in the town on Wednesday night and stayed in the town until Sunday morning.

The pilgrims, who were led by a Dutch priest, spent the night in the town of Bethlehem, which is one of the holiest sites in Christianity. They also visited the Church of the Nativity, the site of Jesus' birth.

1. The first step in the process of developing a business plan is to conduct a market analysis. This involves researching the industry, identifying potential customers, and understanding the competitive landscape.

2. Once the market analysis is complete, the next step is to define the business's mission and vision. This provides a clear direction for the business and helps to align all activities with the overall goals.

3. The third step is to develop a marketing strategy. This includes identifying the target market, selecting appropriate marketing channels, and creating a budget for marketing activities.

4. The fourth step is to create a financial plan. This involves estimating the costs of the business, projecting revenue, and determining the break-even point.

5. Finally, the business plan should be reviewed and updated regularly. As the business grows and the market changes, it is important to reassess the plan and make adjustments as needed.

Stable crude oil prices forecast for 2006

By [Name]

Oil prices are expected to remain stable in 2006, according to a new report from the International Energy Agency (IEA).

The report, published last week, says that global oil demand is expected to grow by 2.5 million barrels per day in 2006, but that this growth will be offset by a similar increase in supply.

The IEA says that the world's oil reserves are still large enough to meet demand for the next 40 years, but that the rate of discovery of new reserves is falling.

The report also says that the price of oil is likely to remain stable in 2006, but that it could rise if there is a significant increase in demand.

The report is the latest in a series of reports from the IEA on the global oil market.
